The present progressive

ANTE TODO

Both Spanish and English use the present progressive, which consists of the present tense of the verb to be and the present participle of another verb (the -ing form in English).

Las chicas están hablando con el empleado del hotel.

¿Estás estudiando en la playa?

- Form the present progressive with the present tense of estar and a present participle.

FORM OF ESTAR + PRESENT PARTICIPLE

Estoy pescando.
I am fishing.

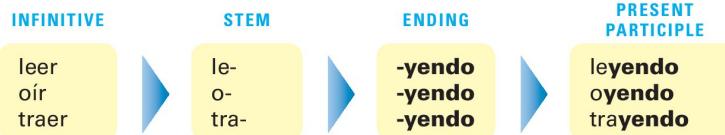

FORM OF ESTAR + PRESENT PARTICIPLE

Estamos comiendo.
We are eating.

- The present participle of regular -ar, -er, and -ir verbs is formed as follows:

- ¡Atención! When the stem of an -er or -ir verb ends in a vowel, the present participle ends in -yendo.

- Ir, poder, and venir have irregular present participles (yendo, pudiendo, viniendo). Several other verbs have irregular present participles that you will need to learn.

- -Ir stem-changing verbs have a stem change in the present participle.

COMPARE & CONTRAST

The use of the present progressive is much more restricted in Spanish than in English. In Spanish, the present progressive is mainly used to emphasize that an action is in progress at the time of speaking.

Maru está escuchando música latina ahora mismo.
Maru is listening to Latin music right now.

Felipe y su amigo todavía están jugando al fútbol.
Felipe and his friend are still playing soccer.

In English, the present progressive is often used to talk about situations and actions that occur over an extended period of time or in the future. In Spanish, the simple present tense is often used instead.

Xavier estudia computación este semestre.
Xavier is studying computer science this semester.

Marissa sale mañana para los Estados Unidos.
Marissa is leaving tomorrow for the United States.

¿Está pensando en su futuro?
Nosotros, sí.
